SITUATION SUMMARY

Hurricane Odile, Eastern Pacific Ocean

Hurricane Odile has been downgraded to a very high end Category 1 hurricane Monday afternoon, 12 hours after making landfall at the tip of the Baja California peninsula. Odile is expected to be downgraded to a tropical storm by Tuesday morning. According to the Servicio Meteorologico Nacional (Mexico's government weather service), strong torrential rains are expected in Baja California, Sonora, Nayarit, Jalisco, Durango, Colima, Chihuahua and Michoacan over the next several days.

- The main impacts for Mexico will be prolonged heavy rainfall, gusty winds, and flash flooding over the next 48 hours. Estimates are in excess of 5 inches for a large portion of Baja California and coastal Sonora Mexico south of Puerto Penasco.
- The storm track is farther east than Norbert was and is not expected to bring significant hazards to CA.
- California will remain outside the primary threat area for this system. While showers and thunderstorms are forecast for much of southeast CA and the southern Sierra, amounts are not expected to exceed 0.75 inches but isolated heavier amounts in excess of an inch are possible in the most intense storms.

Cal OES Southern Activity

The following information has been received from Cal OES Southern Region, Operational Area Representatives:

Imperial County - Imperial is monitoring the weather and expect to be able to handle any activities that may need addressing.

San Diego -San Diego is monitoring NWS and is working with their County Flood Control specialists (they have a staffer, Allen Rand, which takes the NWS information and makes localized predictions for them). They have no other current activity but this may change depending on what happens in the next day or so. They have burn areas they are monitoring.

Inyo - Inyo had not heard that the OA might be getting rougher weather. Today's presentation was sent to Kelley Williams. They are looking forward to tomorrow's forecast out of Reno, which they will use for planning and preparation. They will keep us apprised of any unmet needs.

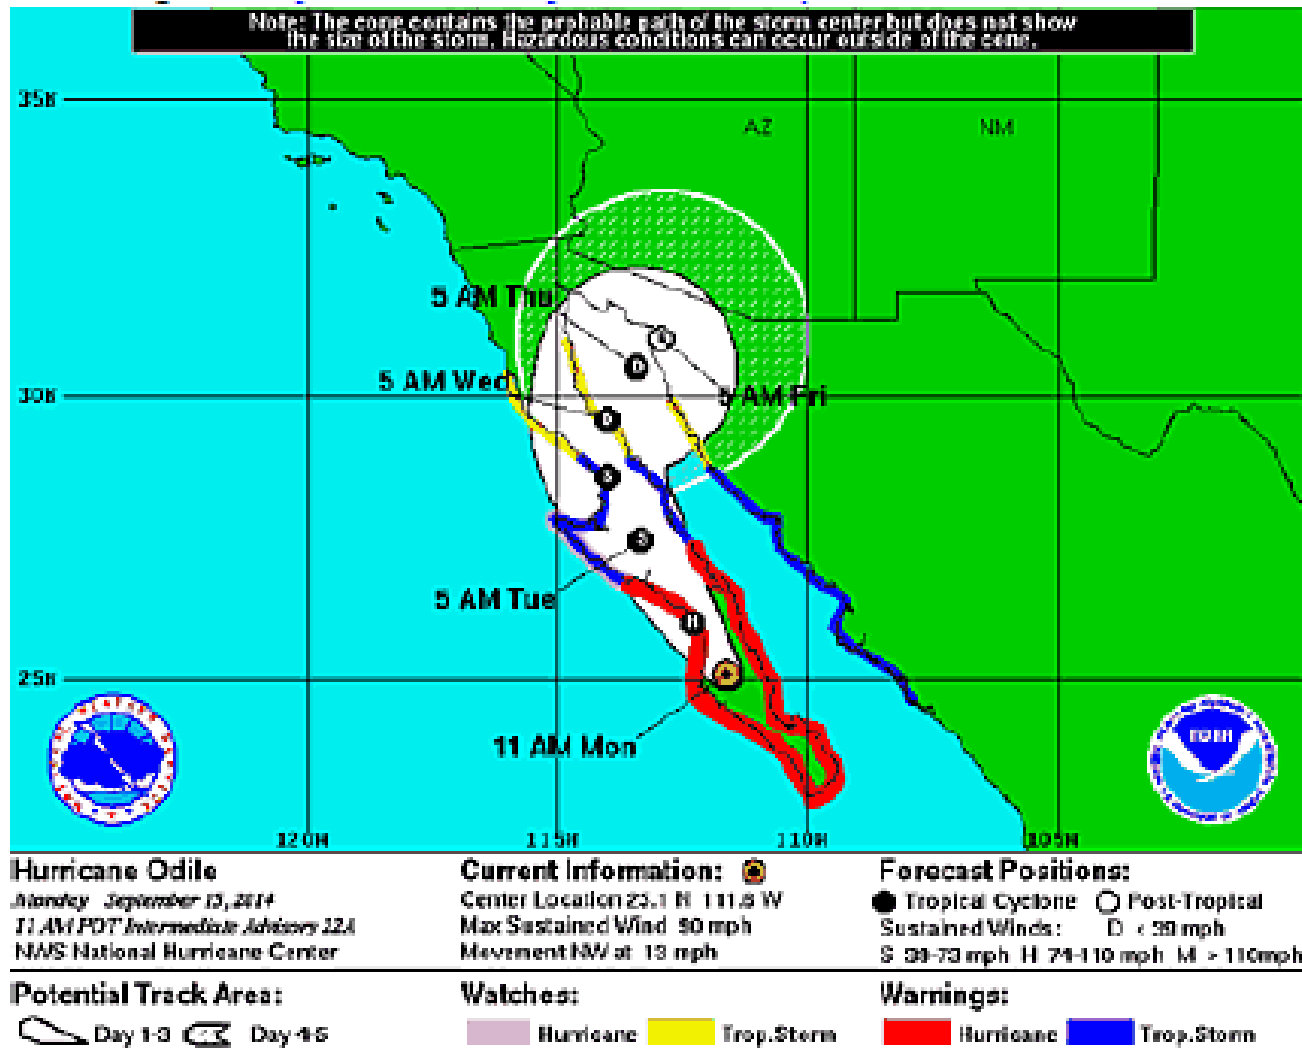

Orange - Orange County is meeting with county agencies this afternoon to strategize recent burn area vulnerabilities in the Silverado Canyon area. Other preparatory measures may be recommended at the meeting.

San Bernardino - The county is prepared with pre-positioning of resources as well as prepared to hold conference calls with impacted agencies as necessary.

Riverside - The county is pre-positioning sand bags at Fire Stations and monitoring weather and keeping their cities informed of any updates to the weather pattern.

Southern Region continues to reach out to the OA's for updates as the storm approaches. The Southern REOC has prepared a staffing pattern should the need arise to activate.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

A weak low pressure system will be moving north off shore today. Moderately strong south to southwest winds will develop today (mostly 7-17 mph, gusts 25-30 mph). Some areas like the southern Shasta Valley may see some relatively low relative humidity with the wind (12-15%). There will be a slight chance of a few afternoon and evening thunderstorms over Northeast California today as well. Tuesday will begin a noticeable cooling trend, and conditions are likely to be dry under southwest flow aloft ahead of the next weather system that will arrive Wednesday. Wednesday's system will bring in a moist air mass, and relative humidity will eventually rise substantially in all areas. Some locations will receive light rain or showers Wednesday night and Thursday as the system moves through the region, particularly in the far western areas. The weather pattern for Friday and the weekend is quite uncertain. Thursday's low could linger over central California or it may move off to the east. If it lingers, moisture from Hurricane Odile may move north along the Sierra for some thunderstorms there, mostly south of Tahoe. If the low moves on, strong high pressure will build over the region from the west with a sharp rise in temperatures and much lower relative humidity again. North to east winds would also develop if the ridge moves in. Either way, warmer temperatures and at least somewhat drier conditions will probably return for the weekend. Confidence is higher that the high pressure ridge will take over the weather pattern early next week, however.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Strong high pressure centered over the Desert Southwest will continue to bring near record or record heat to most of the region through Tuesday, with 80s to low 90s in the mountains and mid 90s to 110 in the valleys. Minimum relative humidity will increase slowly across the region through Tuesday as moisture from Hurricane Odile moves northward. Minimum relative humidity will be between 12% and 25% today and then increase to 15% to 30% Tuesday. Isolated afternoon showers and thunderstorms will form over the Sierra and across the mountains and deserts of Southern California east of the Cajon Pass today. Shower and thunderstorm activity will increase Tuesday and Wednesday and affect the valleys east of Los Angeles County in addition to the mountains and deserts. Depending on the exact track of an area of low pressure that forms off the California Coast Wednesday, shower and thunderstorm activity may become even more widespread affecting most of the region Thursday into this weekend. This low pressure area will also bring a significant cooling trend to the region Wednesday into this weekend. Temperatures will be near to a little below normal Thursday into this weekend.

CAL OES MISSIONS

Closed Cal OES Missions

- 2014-LAW-4996 **REOPENED** This mission, a SAR for a missing hiker, was originally opened on 8/16/14. After searching daily to no avail, the mission was closed on 8/25/14. On 9/10/14, Monterey SO requested to reopen the mission for a single operational period on Saturday, 9/13/14, to search for the missing person's remains. The request is for ten K9 teams and a helicopter to insert them. The Cal OES Law Branch K9 coordinator is working to secure the K9 teams. Monterey SO is requesting the helicopter to expedite deployment of teams in the field to maximize the available search time. The helicopter will be used only to insert teams and not for the extraction; the K9 teams will search all day Saturday, camp overnight and hike out on Sunday. Santa Clara SO has tentatively agreed to provide their helicopter, weather permitting. UPDATE: 9/11/14, 2141 hrs., Cal OES LEB K9 Coordinator has secured 6 HRD teams for Saturday's search. Update: 9/13/14, Monterey SO reports that Santa Clara SO's helicopter successfully inserted the mutual aid K-9 teams into the search area during the morning hours, Saturday before being released. The K-9 teams searched the remainder of the day and will be hiking out of the area today, Sunday, 9/14. Update: 9/14/14, 1501 hrs., Monterey SO advised their search operation is complete; the missing hiker was not located and all mutual aid has been released. Mission Closed.
